Fire safety fines for rogue landlords

by Dan Stephens

TWO landlords have to pay fines and costs of more than £7,000 after the royal borough took action to protect private sector tenants.

The fines were issued against the landlords who let their properties with inadequate fire protection and failed to comply with fire safety regulations.

It followed legal action by the Rogue Landlord Team, which successfully secured the prosecutions at Bexley Magistrates last month (July 27).

The council set up its Rogue Landlord Team in 2013 to drive up standards in private rented properties, and take strong enforcement action against landlords who fail to manage their properties safely and responsibly. Last month's prosecution followed successful convictions against two other landlords in June.

In the first of last month's cases, landlord Rafik Lunat was fined £2,000 and ordered to pay £1,000 costs and a victim surcharge of £200. This was for failing to comply with an Emergency Prohibition Order set up by the council to protect the safety of tenants at a property on Saunders Road, Plumstead.

Inspections had revealed serious fire safety concerns such as fire doors

We'd like something done about street weeds

I WROTE to the council via their website to ask why our roads and pavements were being allowed to become full of weeds. There used to be a task force using weed killer regularly, which kept them all tidy but now it all looks disgraceful. It's not just my road, which is bad enough, but I have noticed it all round the roads of Plumstead. The council have not even had the decency to reply to my email. Is this due to cut backs or the council trying to be green in the extreme?

Sylvia Thornton, Woolwich

I WOULD like to express how disgusted I am with the pavements around where I live - it's like having a garden on the pavement. It's so dangerous I nearly fell after getting my foot caught in the weeds that are growing everywhere. I don't know how you can call this the Royal Borough of Greenwich, I have lived here for 35 years it has never been like this.

Mrs Carol Charlton,
Plumstead

● A council spokesman said: "Firstly, apologies to Sylvia Thornton for not responding to her email. We have checked our records and have been unable to locate it. The Council would also like to apologise for the fact that delays in letting a contract to treat weeds in the borough has resulted in higher than average weed growth. The contract has now been awarded and the weed treatment programme started on July 20. We expect that all the roads in royal borough will be completed within four weeks, weather permitting.

Subsequent applications will follow (we would normally make up to four in a full growth season). After each application the weeds will take up two weeks to show signs of dying off. They will then be removed during the scheduled weekly sweep. The new contract also covers 2016-17, so the problem should not be repeated next year."

weapon. Kind Regards Terence Leahy."

Still no space to park

FIRSTLY, I would like to say that 'some' action has been implemented to tackle the problem of parking on the Plumstead High Street end of Ancona Road (the cul de sac), however I feel as if more could be done. There's been constant problems with parking there for years. Recently bay parking was recently introduced where you needed a resident permit to park on the road, however this only applies between the times of 9.30am and 11am. I find this completely ridiculous. The main problem is to do with people parking on the road and going to work in their kebab shops and off licences down on the high street and leaving their cars there until god knows what time, leaving a lot of residents without anywhere to park on their own street. There's also the school right outside, which makes the road look like something out of a destruction derby in the morning and in the afternoon when all the parents come to pick up their kids. I myself work from 2pm - 10pm and a lot of the time coming home at that time results in no space to park.

Gary Utterson, Plumstead
● A council spokesperson said:
"We were pleased to read that Mr Utterson is pleased with the recent changes we made to parking arrangements in Ancona Road. The changes were made after extensive consultation with local residents and have been designed to deal with station commuter parking which is the biggest problem in the area. We were sorry to read that Mr Utterson continues to have problems because of the nearby school and shops. We work with schools to encourage parents and carers not to drive if they can and to park thoughtfully if they cannot. We will work with this school to improve the situation. We will also look to see if there is solution that will provide a better balance between the needs of local residents and local businesses and shoppers."

Young people broaden their horizons

GREAT OUTDOORS: the London Mayor gets some outdoor survival tips from centre staff and users

LONDON Mayor Boris Johnson joined young adventurers around the camp fire when he visited a popular outdoor learning centre.

The mayor learned how to make a fire after exploring the Wide Horizons adventure learning centre in Shooters Hill.

The centre was transformed from a once-derelict site into an important five-acre green space, with trees, ponds, wildlife and other attractions for young people to explore as part of their education and development.

It's supported by 700 volunteers and has been backed by 'Team London', an Olympic legacy inspired GLA project that matches corporate volunteers with charities and provides funding to get community volunteering projects off the ground.

Team London supports 1,400 organisations across London to promote local opportunities and provides small grants for up to 20 organisations a year. The Wide Horizons charity has eight sites around England and Wales providing experiences to over 40,000 children a year.

Alex Brooks-Johnson, CEO

at Wide Horizons said: "The volunteer programme has enabled us to transform the area into an inspirational place for young people to learn and enjoy being outdoors. Children learn best when they are outdoors and inspired by nature, we can harness the spirit of adventure to teach just about anything."

Oliver Knight, head teacher at the Greenwich Free School, one of the local schools that use the centre, said: "Having access to a resource like this is vital for us to enable our pupils to develop skills and dispositions necessary to live a successful life."

The London Mayor was joined by Cllr John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services, when they celebrated the excellent work going on at the centre, on July 30.

Cllr John Fahy said: "The success of the centre is a credit to the volunteers and young people who contributed to its development. The centre will help to enhance the education and experiences of young people in the borough and I am sure our schools and colleges will reap the benefits of this unique learning facility."

incorrectly fitted and a lack of adequate escape routes in the five-bedroom property. Court action ensued when a follow-up visit by the team revealed Mr Lunat had failed to comply with the original order and create a safer environment for his tenants.

In the second case, the defendant, Zhiyong Wu, was ordered to pay a fine of £3,000, as well as costs of £590 and a victim surcharge of £300. This was for failing to adequately improve his property after an initial investigation in April last year which highlighted a significant lack of fire safety provision.

During the original inspection of the two-story semi in Eltham Palace Road, the team found the property lacked a fire alarm system, fire doors and fire-fighting equipment. Despite giving Mr Wu until December 2014 to carry out the improvement works they were not done and it was only recently that the full range of required safety improvements were eventually made. The court took into account the length of time taken by Mr Wu to take any action when deciding on the level of fine.

Cllr Jackie Smith, Royal Greenwich cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "I hope that these cases show landlords and their tenants that we are fully committed to driving up standards in the private rented sector. It is not acceptable for landlords to continue to collect rents whilst at the same time completely failing to comply with their legal responsibilities to protect tenants from serious harm.

"We offer private landlords comprehensive advice and guidance to ensure that they know how to stay on the right side of the law, so there can be no excuse to continually ignore requests which are only in place to keep people safe.

"It's reassuring to know that the Eltham property now has the fire safety measures in place, and I'm pleased that the court has noted the unnecessarily long time it's taken for these improvements to be made when considering its sentence."

Anyone who has concerns about unsafe or badly managed privately rented properties can contact the Rogue Landlords team on 020 8921 8157 or residentservices@royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Private landlords are welcome to also contact the team for advice about licensing requirements, maintaining safe standards and good management in their properties.

Alarms save lives

THE London Fire Brigade is urging private landlords to apply for free alarms so they are ready for new life saving legislation set to come into force later this year.

From October all private landlords must fit smoke alarms on each floor of their rental properties and install carbon monoxide alarms in rooms containing solid fuel burners - such as cookers and heaters, or face a £5,000 fine.

Private landlords can find more information about who is eligible and how to apply for free smoke and carbon monoxide alarms on London Fire Brigade's website at www.london-fire.gov.uk/freesmokealarms.asp

Have your say on the Silvertown Tunnel

ROYAL borough residents are being urged to have their say on the development of a new tunnel under the Thames being proposed by TfL for Greenwich Peninsula. The consultation session on the Silvertown Tunnel will take place in September with a date to be announced by TfL in coming weeks. It will be open to Greenwich residents and neighbouring boroughs and results will be used to help shape Transport for London's (TfL) application to the government for development consent. The Silvertown Tunnel would be a new river crossing linking the Greenwich Peninsula with the Royal Docks, and could relieve congestion to the nearby Blackwall Tunnel and improving journey times for all transport users say TfL. If the project is approved, construction could start in 2017 and be complete by 2021/22. ● Further information at www.tfl.gov.uk/silvertown-tunnel

Your future, your choice

YOUNG people awaiting the results of their GCSE exams are getting a helping hand deciding on the next step in their studies.

The royal borough has launched a campaign to help students choose which path to take once they reach 16.

The 'Your Future – Made in Greenwich' Post-16 education roadshow is visiting youth hubs and venues across the borough over the next few weeks.

The roadshow will provide free advice and support to students and parents, to help them plan positively for their future.

From this year, all young people are now required to remain in some form of training or education until the age of 18. Young people are encouraged to explore the options available at schools, sixth form centres and colleges, including A and AS levels, BTEC courses, NVQs, and a chance to study for further GCSEs.

There will also be information available on traineeships and apprenticeships, which can also be combined with study for qualifications in a range of subjects including practical skills, English and maths.

Cllr John Fahy, cabinet member for children's services, said: "For young people waiting for exam results this month, it can be an anxious time, but also an exciting time.

"I would encourage young people to take advantage of all the help and support that's available as you think through your options."

● For more details on post-16 options including full details of the schools, colleges and other centres providing courses in the royal borough, visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/yourfuture

● Young people can also get free, confidential advice on finding work, training or an apprenticeship, from the one-stop service at The Point in Woolwich. Greenwich leads London's first FGM protection order

by Simon Banks

A WOMEN'S support centre, which receives funding from the royal borough, stepped in to help three young girls at risk of female genital mutilation (FGM) by using new laws created last month.

The Her Centre made history by taking the case to the High Court where judges issued a Female Genital Mutilation Protection Order (FGMPO) preventing the girls from being taken overseas for the procedure.

It was the first case in London where new laws were used to safeguard potential victims of the practice. Female Genital Mutilation Protection Orders (FGMPOs) are a new civil measure created on July 17 as part of the government's work with victims, communities and professionals to address FGM. The action reflects the fact that FGM is a priority for the Safer Greenwich Partnership. The Partnership brings together the Royal Borough of Greenwich, the Metropolitan Police Service, the NHS and other public sector bodies in order to tackle crime, anti-social behaviour and substance misuse. It is overseen by Councillor Jackie Smith, Cabinet Member for Community Safety and Environment and Police Borough Commander, Helen Millichap.

Orders are tailor-made to each case and can be issued to prevent a child from leaving the country, ensure mandatory medical checks or order a change of address so that authorities can monitor potential victims.

The 34-year-old mother of three girls, aged six, nine and 12, initially contacted the Police's Child Abuse Investigation Team, concerned for the safety of her family who were at risk of FGM which was being forced by their father and other relatives in Nigeria. FGM is illegal in both the UK, Nigeria and many other countries.

The case was referred to the Her Centre, which took the case to the High Court working with the family solicitor from Hudgell and Partners who covers a weekly advice drop in.

The woman-led charity which received funding from the council - under its Violence Against Women and Girls and Children's Safeguarding arrangements - is based in Woolwich. It offers free and confidential advocacy, counselling, outreach and advice for women and girls in the borough.

Her Centre director Stacey Smith said: "It is really positive that the police acted so quickly in the defence of these young girls, this case brings awareness to the kinds of protection available for young girls while also raising the profile of issues of this nature."

● For more information about the HER Centre call 020 3260 7715 or visit www.hercentre.org or contact the Greenwich Domestic Violence Services on 020 8317 8273.

● Support is available for victims of domestic abuse at the Domestic Abuse One Stop Shop on Friday mornings at the Brookhill Children's Centre, from 10-12pm and the Middle Park Community Centre Family Law Clinic in Eltham by appointment.

New healthy eating class for families

by Zach Emmanuel

A NEW play and stay session for families is dishing up information on healthy eating.

The session, which is held at The Hub in Thamesmead, is aimed at under 5s and their parents and offers healthy eating tasting opportunities and interactive cooking. In addition parents can learn about the right portion sizes to maintain a healthy diet.

The class takes place on Wednesdays from 9.30am – 11.30am and is hosted by parent volunteer Elaine Reville, who also runs a session at Mulberry Park Children's Centre in Abbey Wood.

Greenwich Leisure Limited (GLL), which manages the children's centres in the east of the royal borough, successfully applied for funding from The Peabody Trust.

Councillor John Fahy the cabinet member for children's services, visited the new Healthy Wellbeing Stay and Play session to get an insight into how families are taught about healthy eating.

He said: "The activities run by GLL at these two centres are just part of the excellent work done by our children's centres to help families develop a positive approach to their children's health.

"As well as healthy eating and cooking sessions, children's centres also host fitness activities for families as well as bringing in health advice from a range of specialists."

Lisa Walsh, from GLL, said: "This new facility for parents is a really important development for the community in this area. It helps raise awareness of the importance of health and wellbeing and offers parents the opportunity to make informed choices about healthy eating and diet."

NICE NIBBLES: Cllr John Fahy joins families for the healthy eating play and stay sessions at the Hub in Thamesmead

'Super recogniser' receives commendation

EAGLE-EYED bobby Syed Haque has received a commendation for spotting over 100 unidentified offenders.

The PCSO (pictured with borough commander Helen Millichap) has worked for Metropolitan Police for eight years as a 'super recogniser' due to his ability to remember people's faces and identify them on CCTV.

His dedication to his work, even when he is off duty, has been clear on many occasions. In December 2014 whilst he was off duty and with his friends, Syed spotted a suspect outside the Woolwich Arsenal station who was immediately arrested.

After the 2011 London Riots, he also made arrests after spotting suspects who went to check mugshots displayed on the big screen in Woolwich town centre.

Borough Commander Helen Millichap said: "Syed's commendation is thoroughly deserved. He is a fantastic asset not only to the police in Greenwich but to the Metropolitan police as a whole."

Syed said: "Recognising people comes naturally to me. I have spotted many criminals not only whilst on patrol but also whilst off duty and going about my daily life. I am delighted that my ability to recognise people has led to many of them being brought before a court and victims being able to see justice."

Tall Ships set sail for Woolwich

TALL Ships will drop anchor in Woolwich for a maritime festival on the Woolwich Arsenal Riverside for five days over the August Bank Holiday.

Following on from last summer's spectacular Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival, residents and visitors can once again look on as a majestic fleet of up to 15 tall ships cruise the River Thames. The event also includes a fantastic fireworks display every evening and a host of family-friendly entertainment.

Woolwich town centre will be immersed in nautical-themed fun and entertainment from Thursday August 27 until Sunday August 31, including themed children's activities, live music and history re-enactors, while nautical movies are shown on the town's big screen.

Parents and children can enjoy a taste of the high seas at a family entertainment day on Saturday August 29 on the Woolwich Arsenal Riverside. There'll be live music at a bandstand in the Arsenal as well as in the town centre, with performances by a range of acts including a former star of the X-Factor and students from the Academy of Performing Arts.

Also on offer are traditional funfair rides, a vintage car show, Punch and Judy show as well as a host of food stalls and licensed bars which forms part of Berkley Homes Summer Festival.

Visitors can further immerse themselves in the royal borough's rich maritime history by visiting the nearby Firepower Museum and Royal Greenwich Heritage Centre.

The five-day event will see up to 15 Tall Ships arrive on Thursday August 27 with daily sails along the river daily to Greenwich and Tower Bridge. They set off in a spectacular parade of sail on Monday August 31 at 2pm from the Cutty Sark Gardens.

Residents and visitors will also have the chance to purchase tickets to climb aboard two class-A tall ships for the complete maritime experience as Dar Młodzieży and Santa Maria Manuela will be moored at Tall Ships Island, in the river at Maritime Greenwich.

An adult ticket is £20, tickets for children aged five to 15 are £10 and under-fives go free. The ticket includes a trip from either London Bridge City Pier or Greenwich Pier on a MBNA Thames Clipper boat and an hour tour of the two ships. Residents will have the chance to board 13 other tall ships for free when they pre-book, details on how to pre-book free tickets will be announced in coming weeks.

Secure future for sports field

THE royal borough is bringing the much loved Hervey Road Sports Field back into use for the benefit of residents. In order to turn this exciting vision into a reality, the council is currently tendering for an operator to manage the Sports Field and the final deadline for submissions has been extended to August 21.

Once a bid is accepted, the chosen partner organisation will work alongside the council and the community to ensure that the Sports Field thrives once again, with development to commence next year. It is expected that a new operator will be appointed in the autumn with the development and construction of new facilities to take place over the next year.

The council has been committed to protecting the field as part of the council's commitment to delivering a legacy from the 2012 games. In April, Royal Greenwich agreed a deed of dedication in partnership with Fields in Trust which protects Hervey Road and will ensure that it remains a field for sport and recreation.

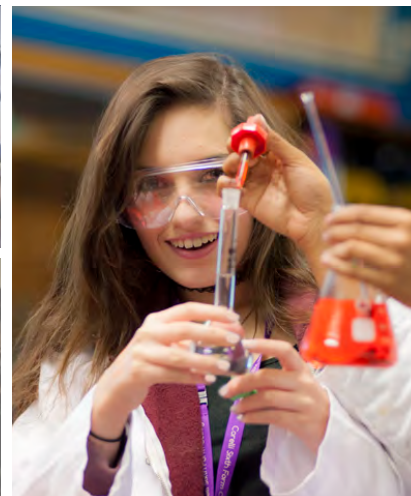

Last year the council was also successful in securing close to £900,000 in funding from the London Marathon Charitable Trust and Sport England to bring the playing fields back in to use. The planned development will include a new sports pavilion and changing rooms, improvements to the playing pitches, a floodlit multi-use games area and a disability play area.

Help improve the borough's flood defences

A FLOOD risk strategy has been written by the royal borough detailing how to deal with potential flooding – and now local residents can have their say on the strategy. After devastating floods in 2007 new laws were introduced requiring every local authority to have a strategy in place to deal with any potential incidents. The royal borough is interested in hearing from residents about their experiences of flooding. The royal borough is responsible for local flood risks from surface water floods, ground water floods or from streams, rivers and canals. However flood risk from larger rivers such as the Quaggy, Kid-brooke and the Thames is the responsibility of the Environment Agency. Cllr Danny Thorpe, cabinet member for regeneration, enterprise and skills, said: "Flooding can strike suddenly anywhere and cause real devastation. It is absolutely right that we consider how we might cope with flooding from any local waterways so we are best equipped to cope in any worst case scenario. I really want local people to feed in their views and experiences so we can build up as good a picture as possible on local flooding risks so we can avoid any major incidences."

PUBLIC health warnings have been issued after a royal borough inspection of tanning salons.

The investigation by royal borough trading standards officers is part of a regional initiative funded by the government. It follows concerns from results elsewhere in the country that many tanning salons are operating sunbeds which emit UV radiation levels above the safe legal limit - potentially increasing the risks of skin cancer for users.

Trading Standards previously advised all salons of compliance requirements and have been working with an environmental health licensing team to update operators' licence conditions and provide advice and information on UV levels.

Royal borough public health advisers explained that any exposure to a sun bed will increase your risk of developing skin cancer. They say sunbathers often believe that sunbeds are a 'controlled way' of getting a 'safer tan', but, they warn sunbeds can give out greater doses of UV rays than the midday tropical sun and can be more dangerous. They also stress that using sunbeds before the age of 35 increases the risk of skin cancer by up to 75% as well as speeding up the natural aging process.

At this time of year in the summer and with summer holidays it's important to be safe in the sun even if you're not using sunbeds and residents who don't use sunbeds are urged to:

- Spend time in the shade between 11am-3pm
- Make sure you never burn
- Aim to cover up with a t-shirt, hat and sunglasses
- Remember to take extra care with children
- Then use factor 15+ sunscreen

Cllr Jackie Smith, the royal borough's cabinet member for community safety and environment said: "This investigation has highlighted a serious lack of adherence to health and safety guidelines and the royal borough will support business owners to ensure they know about the recommended safety levels."

Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald, the cabinet member for community wellbeing and public health, added: "Sunbeds can sometimes be marketed as a 'controlled way' of getting a 'safer tan'. But actually, sunbeds are no safer than exposure to the sun itself, and the amount of UV people receive varies enormously too. Research states that sunbeds provide no positive health benefits. And using a sunbed before you go on holiday doesn't protect against further damage from the sun while you're away. Using a sun bed once or more a month could increase the chances of developing skin cancer by more than 50%. It may seem like a safe way to tan but there are lots of dangers around it."

First steps to secondary school

Summer workshops makes it easier to go to big school

by Dan Stephens

PRIMARY school pupils are getting a helping hand to get ready for secondary school thanks to the council's Stepping Up Transition Programme.

The series of workshops at local schools runs over the summer holiday and aims to address some of the concerns pupils have about starting secondary school.

Over 50 children whose teachers felt they would benefit the most were invited to take part in the Stepping Up programme this summer.

One theme running through the workshops is delivering literacy and numeracy in a fun and accessible way to pupils of all abilities. Other workshops cover safer travel to school, anti-bullying advice and community safety tips from school police officers.

The sessions, which are all delivered by qualified professionals, also cover confidence building, making new friends dealing with conflict, coping with change, peer pressure and the dangers of drugs.

Alisha Beadell, 11, attended the programme at Thomas Tallis School. She said: "It is a great way to meet other children that have the same concerns about secondary school like me."

Dani Havasi, 11, who will be starting at Corelli College next term said: "This programme isn't like programmes that other schools offer. I have learnt a lot from coming here and it is better than I expected."

Cllr John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services said: "Last term's year 6 pupils are set to leave the familiarity of their primary school and friends, to become the newest and youngest in a new school with different teachers and expectations of more responsibility."

"Our successful Stepping Up programme gives children the opportunity to meet others who are going to their new school. They are able to prepare for the transition and talk together about concerns and worries about leaving primary school."

"The royal borough has an excellent reputation for helping children make the transition to senior school, and The Stepping Up programme, which is now running successfully for a third consecutive year, is helping maintain this success."

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich (hereinafter referred to as "the Council") on 10th August made the above-mentioned Orders under section 9 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, as amended. The Orders will come into operation on 18th August 2015.

7. The Council will consider in due course whether the provisions of the Orders should be continued in force indefinitely by means of permanent Orders made under sections 6, 45, 46 and 49 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984. Any person may object to the making of the permanent Orders for the purpose of such indefinite continuation, within a period of six months beginning with the date on which the experimental Orders come into force or, if either of the Orders are varied by another Order or modified pursuant to section 10(2) of the 1984 Act, beginning with the date on which the variation or modification or the latest variation or modification comes into force. YOUNG people seized the opportunity to gain first-hand experience working for the council last month thanks to the Power to Work Programme.

The three-week course was run by the employment agency Manpower alongside the council and Job Centre Plus. It aims to develop the skills and confidence of participants through a varied range of activities with a focus on them entering the world of work.

Power to Work is a national employer-led programme designed to tackle youth unemployment and aims to support 18-24 year olds not in education, employment or training. Last month's activity programme took place at the Woolwich Centre and Town Hall with six young people taking part after they were recommended by Job Centre Plus.

The programme included 'job shadowing' with a mentor from the council alongside a wide variety of training activities individually tailored for each participant. The programme ended with a graduation ceremony to mark participants' achievements and three of the participants secured agency work through Manpower including two with the council.

Veniana Mataceva, who completed the training course, told GT: "The main role I had was in the customer service department and similar roles over the three weeks at the council. It has made me a lot more confident."

Abimbola Lawal added: "We worked face-to-face with members of the public at the service and contact centre as well as corporate reception. Whilst here we developed communication and writing skills, and learnt about dealing with customers and managing time. It was a worthwhile experience and I'd really recommend it. I've got a job with Manpower as a result of the course."

Cllr Sizwe James, the royal borough's cabinet member for business employment and skills said: "Well done to the participants of the Power to Work Programme for completing the course – it is great news that some participants have already secured paid work with Manpower."

"Providing training and job opportunities is a key priority for the council and we are determined to build on our superb record, which includes helping over 14,000 residents into work through the council's Local Labour and Business service (GLLaB)."

Sponsored haircut success

A brave teenager gave up her flowing locks so that young cancer patients can have a crowning glory.

Tayla-Jayne Homewood-Lawrence raised over £1500 after a sponsored haircut. The 17-year-old decided she would donate at least 14 inches of her hair to the Little Princess Trust, which provides real hair wigs to boys and girls who have lost their hair to cancer. She had her hair cut in the Woodcroft Club in Eltham High Street last month and lost 18 inches instead of 14 in the end. Tayla-Jayne's grandmother, Yvonne died three years ago after breast cancer and sparked her decision to donate. The day which included the haircut, a barbecue and charity auction raising over £1500.

Friends come out in force for heritage trust

HERITAGE guardians are seeking more members to help raise awareness and funds for their conservation work.

The Friends of Royal Greenwich Heritage Trust recently hosted their first public event – an evening with renowned architectural historian Dr Claire Gapper, at Charlton House.

Dr Gapper told the audience: "Charlton House contains some of the best early Jacobean plasterwork to survive. Nothing survives from the royal palaces of the time so a courtier house like Sir Adam Newton's shows us how magnificent they must have been." Set up in May 2014, the Trust and its staff and volunteers aims to bring the heritage of the royal borough to life by working with community partners. It also aims to help people find out about local heritage and the wider history of the royal borough. Further public events are planned along with a number of projects, including community events and new exhibitions.

Heritage Trust chief executive Tracy Stringfellow said: "Dr Claire's talk was a huge success, and generated a great deal of interest in the building. We also received a number of enquiries from the public who wish to become members."

More than just borrowing books

Read all about it

THE NEW library on Vanbrugh Hill, East Greenwich, has been welcoming high volumes of residents through its doors since it opened last month.

It's part of the Greenwich Centre, a new neighbourhood hub offering council and community services under one roof. Built on the site of the former East Greenwich Hospital, it offers a gymnasium, swimming pools, community learning facilities and the stunning new library, equipped with the latest digital technology.

Cllr Miranda Williams, the cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "The response from local residents to this new state-of-the-art library has been really positive, there is so much on offer for all generations, from children, teenagers and students to adults and over 50s.

"Since the schools broke up for the summer holidays, staff have reported lots of children attending, so much so that many of our children's books are out of stock. We have also encouraged this with special reading challenges. The youngsters have also been enjoying the video games area on Saturdays when we tournaments are held."

Helen Koya, a student from Greenwich, said: "It's a great new facility, it also happens to be on my doorstep which makes me feel very lucky. I am a student so I enjoy using the space for learning and working."

Martin Prior, also from Greenwich told GT: "I have been using the library since day one as it's local for me. I use it mostly for the computers and surfing the internet. The staff here are very helpful and the noise levels are very low, which makes it a great space to work from."

Kay Obi, added: "I think the space is great, I enjoy using the computers for my research work and I also use business text books in the library too, making this an ideal location for my needs."

Martia Fuller, from Charlton said: "I come here on my own to borrow books and also with my family who also like to read. There is a wide selection of books for everyone."

● The Greenwich Centre is at 12 Lambard Square, Greenwich, SE10 9HB. It's open from 6.30am-10pm

RECORD-breaking numbers of residents have been visiting their local libraries to make use of a range of services and facilities on offer thanks to major investment from the royal borough. It means our libraries are among the busiest in the capital with users visiting to get online and borrow books, videos and CDs as well as joining book clubs and reading groups, music and craft sessions. Latest figures show that more than 10,500 people visited the borough's libraries in the month of June compared to the same month last year.

SIMON BANKS finds out what's on offer over the summer...

WOOLWICH Library is officially one of the busiest libraries in London thanks to residents flocking to take full advantage of the resources available, including the latest digital technology.

Children can learn new skills, including how to create Japanese arts and crafts or take part in a kite-building workshop, catch a puppet show or even meet the UK's smallest owls, at some of the fun and free activities on offer this summer.

Rachel Davidson, from Plumstead, visits the library to use the computers while her daughter, Phoebe, 14, uses the quiet space for studying. She told GT: "I visit Woolwich library because the facilities here are very good. I think more and more people are coming to the Woolwich library because of its central location and its great facilities."

Phoebe added: "I like studying at the Woolwich Library because it is quiet."

Ettien Isaac, from Plumstead, started using Woolwich Library for the first time last month, and said: "I think the library is great, it is a really handy and well-equipped space and I enjoy using the quiet area to study in. It's fantastic that more and more people are coming as they can take advantage of its excellent facilities too, I recommend the space to my friends."

I. Jackson, from Woolwich, said: "I enjoy using the Apple Mac computers at the Woolwich Library, they are easy to use and staff here are very helpful too."

PIPISTRELLE: One of the species of bats that you could see at Woodlands Farm, (c) Hugh Clark/www.bats.org.uk

Find us a bat

NATURE enthusiasts and lovers of the outdoors get a rare opportunity to mingle with creatures of the night this month. Woodlands Farm in Shooters Hill is hosting a series of bat walks over three evenings where visitors can learn about these fascinating mammals first hand.

Events start with an introductory talk about bats in general including details of the species seen on the farm. The group will then head out with bat detectors to try and find them and see the bats first-hand.

Hannah Forshaw, education officer at Woodlands Farm told GT: "We have three different species of bat on the farm, the soprano pipistrelle, common pipistrelle and noctule bat, so we have both the smallest bat and one of the largest bats in the UK here.

"Our bat walks are a fantastic opportunity to discover more about these amazing creatures. The bat detectors allow us to hear their calls as they feed and if we are lucky we hopefully will see them as well. Pipistrelle bats feed on about 3,000 insects a night so they are normally very active feeding in woodland clearings and along our hedgerows.

"As well as bats we have lots of other nocturnal wildlife including hedgehogs and tawny owls so with any luck we will also have a chance to see and hear these elusive animals too."

The bat walks take place on August 20 at 8pm, August 27 at 7.45pm and September 3 at 7.30pm. Prices are £5 for adults and £3 children (not recommended for children under six), members of Woodlands Farm Trust going free. Booking is essential by calling 020 8319 8900. Please wear sturdy footwear, and bring a torch. Insect repellent is also recommended.

For further information about other events, and to become a member of the Woodlands Farm Trust, visit www.thewoodlandsfarmtrust.org

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 454

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 19 August 2015 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 16 August 2015.

Association which received information from 87 of its 92 clubs.

Now the trust is one of seven best performing clubs invited to help formulate a Best Practice Strategy which the PFA will share with other clubs.

The trust runs a range of sport-themed programmes designed to raise educational achievement and improve job prospects, as well as promoting healthier lifestyles and uniting communities while reducing crime and anti social behaviour. It's supported by the royal borough and runs local youth services on behalf of the council including youth clubs and a range of activities for young people.

Dr Michael Seeraj, head of equality and diversity at CACT said: "Promoting equality and inclusion is a key component of all our work and the CARE Partnership is central to this. We are very proud to have been identified as an example of best practice in this field, and look forward to forming part of the PFA's group of seven professional clubs to develop a best practice strategy document."

Cllr Denise Scott-McDonald, joint chair of CARE and royal borough's cabinet member for community wellbeing and public health added: "This is testament to the continuing great work that CARE has been delivering for over 20 years and further demonstrates the importance of the longstanding partnership between the royal borough, Charlton Athletic Community Trust, Greenwich Leisure Limited and local community groups. Promoting equality and inclusion is a core function of our work, and we are very pleased that this has been so widely recognised."
